Intellectual property policy

Miles Construction NZ Ltd invests significant time, effort and money every year designing outstanding New Zealand homes. We regularly receive design awards from the housing industry for these homes. Accordingly, we take our intellectual property rights very seriously. But it is not only our investment that we are trying to protect. It is also the investment that our paying customers make when they choose to design and build with Miles Construction. We believe that design is important – it is valuable and it deserves to be protected. We will always protect our rights and that of our paying customers in ensuring that others don't improperly use property that is not theirs.

As a matter of law, all plans, designs, illustrations, photos, images or other similar material produced by Miles Construction NZ Ltd, whether in printed form or represented in actual homes, are owned by

Miles Construction NZ Ltd. The most common way we authorise people to use our intellectual property is through signing a contract with Miles Construction. In the event that we detect or are informed of any breach of Miles Construction NZ Ltd's intellectual property rights, we will pursue legal avenues to protect Miles Construction NZ Ltd and its customers. We have enforced these rights on a number of occasions and the remedy awarded can be for damages to be paid and these sums can be substantial.

If you would like further information on our policy, please contact Miles Construction and a representative will contact you. Should you believe Miles Construction NZ Ltd's rights have been infringed, we also encourage you to advise us.
